All songs are written by Sarah Hudson unless otherwise specified.

Sarah Hudson began her professional singing career at age nine and started writing songs at age fourteen. She opened for multiple national acts including both Willie and Lukas Nelson, The Steeldrivers, The Vespers, Donna The Buffalo, and was invited to sing at the White House in 2001. In 2011, Sarah was a top finalist in the John Lennon National Songwriting Competition and awarded Ohio’s Best Young Artist by the Ohio Arts Presenter’s Network. Storytelling, whether through music or the spoken word has always been a passion of Sarah's. While her parents never exposed her to country music, growing up in the rural thumb of Michigan – the Americana melodies and storytelling element of country music transuded into Sarah’s writing style. Sarah currently lives in Columbus, Ohio, with her husband Brad, and she tours regionally with her all-female band, The Salty Caramels.
